سوال 10

Reading Comprehension

The Moon orbits the Earth. When it orbits, it travels in a circle around the Earth. There is a force between Earth and the Moon called gravity. Because of gravity, larger objects pull smaller ones towards them. Earth is larger than the Moon, so the Earth pulls on the moon. At the same time Earth is being pulled by the sun. The sun is larger than Earth. The balance between those two "pulls" is what keeps the moon in orbit around Earth. People say the Moon shines. However the Moon doesn't actually have any light of its own. What we see as its light is really the sun's light reflecting the Moon. It takes the moon 28 or 27 days to complete an orbit around Earth.

A) Check true or false

- 1) The Moon is as large as the Sun.
- 2) Because of gravity, large objects pull small objects towards them.
- 3) What keeps the Moon is the balance between two forces.
- 4) The Moon gets its light from the Sun.
